The Commission heard from members of the public at a Town Meeting on October 18. Previously, current and former mayors, finance and accounts commissioners, as well as city managers from Corning and Batavia addressed the Commission, as it conducts a comprehensive analysis of how city government functions under the existing charter.

The charge of this Commission is to review the current city charter, propose such revisions or amendments as the Commission may deem appropriate, make a report to the public, and submit any such revisions or amendments to the electors of the city at a public referendum. By law, the review takes place every ten years.
